BRITAIN SPURNS FRENCH APPEAL FOR HELP

KERR EXPLAINS STATE'S "GIFT" FUND DIVISION

No 'Surprise', He Asserts;
Money Belonged to 1935
Distribution

FOUNDATION LAW PLAN OUTLINED

Allotted $22,000, But Get $5,000 Cash; Must Borrow Remainder

The so-called "surprise" gift to schools in the way of a division of liquid fuel and sales tax funds recently cannot in any sense be construed as a "surprise", it was pointed out today by Earl S. Kerr, superintendent of schools.

Just why some state officials endeavored to carry this money over from 1935, the year to which the distribution should have been credited, lacks explanation, Kerr declared, as he revealed today some facts in connection with school fund raising and distribution.

Part Held Back

"The Ohio tax commission", he said, "estimated the income to schools from the sales tax for 1935 to be in excess of $31 per pupil. During the first three quarters of the year, the schools received about $11 per pupil from the combined liquid fuel and sales tax. When it came to distributing these revenues for the fourth quarter, the school received an 'advance' of $5 per pupil to help boards of education meet some of their past due bills—bills whose payment were awaiting the expected fourth quarter distribution of sales tax.

"After the five dollar 'advance' was distributed, there remained $23,000 which, for some reason, the state officials tried to carry over into the 1936 distribution. The department of education appealed to Attorney General John W. Bricker, who ruled that the $23,000 belonged to the school districts of the state, and that the money be distributed at once and credited to the 1935 distribution. This is the 'surprise gift' to the schools.

"Also there came from Columbus an announcement of the distribution of some $11,804,000 of the liquid fuel tax, the state officials tried to carry over into the 1936 distribution. The department of education appealed to Attorney General John W. Bricker, who ruled that the $11,804,000 belonged to the school districts of the state, and that the money be distributed at once and credited to the 1935 distribution. This is the 'surprise gift' to the schools.

"Here are the facts. Under the foundation law, the state schools no longer receive direct distribution of portions of the intangibles tax, liquid fuel tax and sales tax. We receive from the state public school fund only a certain amount provided on our average daily attendance. This amount will be much less than we have received heretofore.

"Because of this fact and to try to keep our schools running, the Columbiana county tax commission has been compelled to raise our school tax rate. Of the $22,111.24 reported to the state schools, we received a check for $5,222.92. If we want to use the remaining $16,888.32, we have the privilege to borrow from the banks.

"State totals running into millions of dollars are used to produce the impression that public schools are rolling in wealth. When we remember that in Ohio we have more than one and one-quarter million children in our public schools, the figures take on a more sober tone. In fact, they serve to bring home the meager support accorded our boys and girls at the hands of politicians."

SPANISH RIOTS TAKE BIG TOLL

Nearly 50 Killed; New Government Seeks to Halt Attacks

(By Associated Press)
MADRID, March 10.—Spain's new Leftist government held fast to a countrywide state of alarm today to quell stubborn rioting which pushed the post-election death toll to nearly 50 and witnessed an attack on the Nazi Swastika of a German consulate.

Assaults of ten more convents and churches brought to 27 the number of such institutions either fired or sacked since the mid-February voting. Seven more deaths in Leftist-Fascist fighting swelled the total to 46 since the elections. Rioting before the German consulate in Cadiz was confined to tearing down the Swastika. No other anti-Nazi incidents were reported.

With daily riots for nearly a month, the government showed no indication of relaxing the state of alarm. Most politicians, however, believed the riots would cease when congress meets and adopts government projects for the unemployed and for Agrarian reform. Cadiz and Seville provinces were the scenes of the more serious recent disorders. In Cadiz alone nine religious buildings were damaged or destroyed. Quiet was restored today.

A general strike prevailed in Toledo and Granada as a result of the killing of a Leftist worker by a Fascist assault guard group. Premier Manuel Azana's government recently closed all Fascist headquarters.

Program Presented By Fairview P.-T.A.

Mrs. Willis McArtor was in charge of the program presented Friday evening at the meeting of the Fairview Parent-Teacher association at the school.

Herbert McArtor and William Schuller entertained with guitar and violin selections which were followed by a question box, concerning Ohio, led by Mrs. McArtor. McArtor and Schuller offered several vocal numbers and following a game McArtor had a vocal solo.

The next meeting will be April 3 in charge of Mrs. Ed Grubbs.

FDR'S Tax Program Moves Forward With Committee Approval

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 10.—President Roosevelt's corporation tax revision program moved forward today with the approval of the Democratic majority of the house ways and means committee.

But the committee majority informally approved the plan with the understanding that it should be modified to protect corporations in laying aside sufficient reserves to "cushion" the concerns in lean years.

This proposal was bitterly opposed by administration experts who insisted the program was originally presented did not prevent corporations from building up reserves for a rainy day.

With the committee majority's approval, a sub-committee set to work today to draft the President's recommendations into bill form, and to work out a system of moderate taxes for "cushion" reserves.

Despite administration opposition the ways and means sub-committee was considering several proposals for permitting corporations to lay aside "cushion" reserves without paying high taxes on them.

Much discussed was a proposal to graduate the tax scale according to the percentage of annual profits turned into surplus. Thus a corporation might keep 10 per cent of its profits in surplus without paying more than the present corporation tax of about 16 per cent on it.

Speaker Byrnes and other administration leaders were opposing this plan. They agreed that even with a tax of 33-1-3 per cent, a corporation could keep half of its profits in surplus without paying more total taxes than at present.

Roy Whinnery and Mrs. John Pike head the married men's and women's teams while Lawrence Clewell and Alice Gamble captain the young people's groups.

Carnival Show Hit By Winds at Miami

MIAMI Fla., March 10.—Tumbled wreckage of a carnival show was the chief sign today of an erratic wind and rain storm which swept parts of Miami in a five-minute blow yesterday.

Some 30 persons were cut or bruised during the brief disturbance carrying winds measured at 43 miles an hour.

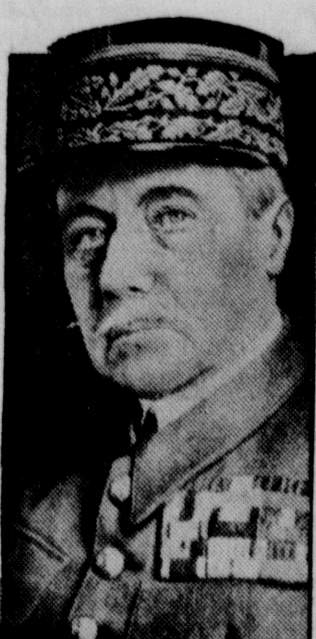

Shoots Own Son

CLEVELAND, March 10.—Police today said Richard Malafa, 6, was accidentally shot and killed by his father, Joseph, 50, last night. The father procured a 32-year-old pistol which had "never been fired" for a cowboy game with the boy. It discharged while the man was examining it. The bullet pierced the child's chest.

Embarking for frontier

When Adolf Hitler ordered 25,000 German troops into the demilitarized Rhine frontier section, thus violating the Versailles treaty and creating a new international crisis, France retaliated by mobilizing 150,000 poilus in eastern fortifications. Some of the troops dispatched for the famous Maginot line several weeks ago at first indication of the impending crisis are shown embarking from Paris, below. France's famous line of steel and concrete underground forts, supplemented by tanks and anti-aircraft guns, such as are shown above, are commanded by Gen. ALARM SYSTEM - BREAK SOUGHT

Fire Wires Dead; Plants
Are Notified To Use
Telephones

The city fire alarm system went "dead" last night and Fire Chief Vincent Malloy immediately notified all plant watchmen to use the telephone in case of fire. The number is 21.

Malloy and city electricians were at a loss to explain the break somewhere in the alarm circuit. There are 11 emergency boxes throughout the city.

The electricians continued their investigation of the trouble today in an effort to remedy the situation as quickly as possible.

Malloy and his aides worked until 3 a. m. today seeking to find the trouble but were forced to abandon work until later today due to a heavy fog.

Canton Man Kills Two Sons and Self

CANTON, March 10.—An 11-year-old girl was the only survivor of three persons today after Frank Loew, 37, steel worker, became temporarily deranged over family troubles.

Loew ended his own life yesterday with a shotgun after wounding his son, William, 6, and pointing the gun at the daughter, Gertrude. The son died last night in Mercv hospital.

The children had been playing checkers when the father started shooting. Gertrude jumped up and fled. Despite his wounds, William followed her from the house, collapsing in a driveway.

Sheriff Joseph Nist said the father had been separated from his wife for two weeks.

Baroness To Sue Heirs of Mdvani

(By United Press)
BERLIN, March 10.—A lawyer said today that Baroness Maud von Thyssen, companion of Prince Alexis Mdvani on the night he lost his life in an auto crash in Spain, intends to sue the Mdvani heirs.

The baroness, said Count Ludwig Carl von Strachwitz, the lawyer, will ask 1,000,000 marks ($400,000) damage for the loss of jewelry which she claims was in the car of the former husband of Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow at the time of the crash last year.

Hotel Man Dies

DAYTON, March 10.—John P. Breen, 76, widely known hotel man and in 1904 president of the Ohio Hotel association, died last night. From 1931 until Jan. 1 of this year he managed the Dayton Biltmore hotel, and from 1898 until 1926 directed the old Phillips House here.

Police Called Out To Chase "Kittens" That Don't "Meow"

Skunks today became the latest public enemy of the police department.

Several Salem residents called police and asked that the officers please do something about the unwelcome cats that have burrowed themselves underneath porches.

"Shoot them" one resident pleaded.

Conditions were so unpleasant at an East State st., dwelling that the owner tore up the porch in an effort to rout out the skunk which no neighbor needed to tell him was there. Patrolman Nerr Gaunt, with revolver drawn, discovered the animal had crawled back into the tile foundation of the house.

The next plea came from Charles Cavanaugh who reported a whole litter of the "little kittens" underneath his porch.

Britain's King Has Audiences With Top Men of Government

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, March 10.—Great Britain's new king, Edward VIII, received leaders of his government in audiences today while Britain assumed its familiar role of conciliator in the crisis arising from Germany's denunciation of the Locarno pact.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin first visited the sovereign this morning at Buckingham palace, and Alfred Duff Cooper, secretary of war, was received later in a separate audience.

With Britain back in the position it has occupied frequently since the armistice—that of intermediary between bitter opponents—some informed sources expressed belief that the greatest danger of a European disaster resulting from Germany's occupation of the Rhineland, might already be passing.

Strong home support for Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's government's firm but conciliatory stand as a Locarno guarantor was expressed in virtually all British quarters.

E. Liverpool Levy Vote Next Monday

EAST LIVERPOOL, March 10.—The Columbiana county election board today appointed 100 judges and clerks for 25 precincts and opened the polls for absent voters as plans were completed for the special election here next Monday on a proposed 15-year 2.55-mill tax levy for municipal operating purposes and debt charges.

FRANCE CALLS ON LEAGUE

Demands aid In Ousting Hitler Forces
From Rhineland

By JOHN EVANS.
(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

PARIS, March 10.—Great Britain today refused France's request for immediate help in ousting Germany's armies from the Rhineland and the French government issued a general appeal to members of the League of Nations for support in "a fight for peace."

After Pierre-Etienne Flandin, his foreign minister, had failed at a conference of Locarno signatories to get Great Britain's backing, Premier Albert Sarraut went before the chamber of deputies in a public effort to gain sympathy for the French cause.

Wants Clear Decision

He proclaimed his government's determination to get a clear and precise decision on "the agonizing problems of the strength of right against might."

At the same time Yvon Delbos, minister of justice, made a similar plea to the senate.

Premier Sarraut declared that if Reichsfuehrer Hitler was justified in violating the Locarno treaty, "then we must turn resolutely toward military alliances and armament races and, let us admit it frankly, to war made by the strong when the time favors."

He asked the German people "if you would have confidence in France signing new treaties if she had just torn up old ones? How, then, can the French have confidence in the fresh negotiations that Germany proposes?"

In Sympathy With Peace

The premier declared that France "does not refuse negotiations that make for peace in the future," but "cannot treat when dominated by violence and when signatures are repudiated."

"France," he said, "is ready to treat with Germany once respect for international law has again been assured."

"The future of European peace is at stake."

Bitter Industrial Strife May Result In New York Strike

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 10.—Union leaders today drove forward their strike of building service employees under a forecast of the "most bitter" kind of industrial strife.

Rollled by the refusal of operators of New York's skyscrapers to accept Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's proposals to end the nine-day old walk-out, the union named department stores, hotels, banks and insurance companies as their immediate point of new attack.

"The most bitter industrial strife yet seen" will result from the landlords' failure to accept the LaGuardia plan, James J. Bambrick, local president of the building service employees union, told a mass meeting last night.

"If Wholesale disorder should develop," he added, "I place the entire responsibility on the banks and real estate owners."

Bambrick addressed much of his attack at the "moneyed interests" he said were trying to break union labor. He appealed to all union workers and sympathizers to withdraw their deposits from banks they may suspect of opposing the strike.

The really advisory board, an organization of building operators, told the mayor yesterday that "modifications" would be necessary before they could agree to his plan.

WILLIAM L. DEMING

William L. Deming is dead and with his passing the city loses a man who helped to build it.

A simple, unostentatious statement in itself, but it represents pitifully the career of a man who knew the meaning of citizenship. If Will Deming were speaking of his career, that's very likely the way he would put it, to the point and without elaboration.

He was direct, straightforward, avoided showiness. If five words were sufficient to clearly express any given thought, he felt there was nothing to be gained in using eight or nine words.

As an executive of The Deming Co., he, with his associates, so built the organization that it became one of the best and the largest pump manufacturers in the country, its products being distributed in various parts of the world.

As a private individual, he contributed much of his time and his efforts toward civic improvement and progress, never hesitating to lend his aid in the development of the community in which he was so interested.

His career may well be used as a pattern of service and accomplishment.

THEY ALL AGREE

It seems incredible in view of what is happening, but the fact is that not a single European government wants to fight. Without exception, they are forced to keep in fighting trim by their hostile neighbors.

The German memorandum on military reoccupation of the Rhineland in defiance of the Treaty of Versailles and the Locarno pact speaks of Germany's longing for "real pacification of Europe." The British house of commons thought that was a funny phrase when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden pointed it out.

Britains, of course, feel that they really are sincere about wanting to avoid war. They happen to be preparing to set the pace for Europe in an armament race, but that's because they can't trust their neighbors.

France, naturally, is devoted to peace. That's why it has surrounded Germany with a ring of steel—to prevent war. If the Germans were really interested in preventing war, they would pay no attention to the possibility that France or Russia or maybe even Italy might be able to embarrass Germany if it remained defenseless.

Russia never misses a chance to confirm its interest in peace. Even Italy was forced to invade Ethiopia because it had too many babies at home and not enough land to accommodate them. It is indeed a strange situation, with Hans, John, Pierre, Ivan and Pedro all glowering at each other in the interest of peace. Apparently, complete familiarity with the ins and outs of their own thinking has convinced each one that it pays to be on the lookout for the darkest kind of rascality.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, March 10.—The dollar debacle has given New York hotels and shops a British and continental clientele they have never enjoyed before. Every incoming liner brings a large quota of shoppers to take advantage of a currency favor that creates a saving for foreign buyers.

Such trade is largely in the luxury division—high priced dressmakers, tailors, de luxe hotels and restaurants. Never in the history of the metropolis has it entertained so many dukes, duchesses, princes, princesses and counts as it has this winter.

The society page accounts of public dinners reads like a Monday morning guest list of a Maybelle Gilman Corey Sunday night soiree at the Paris Ritz. Five ultra hotels have had to add to their French speaking staffs of assistant managers. And 9 o'clock dining is a part of the new order.

This influx of tourist spenders has naturally marked the town with a lacquered pleasantness reminiscent of Mayfair and the Place Vendome. Especially is it pronounced at tea time when tea rooms so long deserted for the intimate bars are filled again. And tea is actually drunk.

The shadowy chop suey restaurants with their private booths, caches for the clandestine, have had tough going since fire swept like flames in dry grass through one of them, leaving eight dead and more than a score injured recently. A searchlight of publicity was turned on the inflammable hangings and tinder box structure of a number. And the human sacrifice may not be in vain. They're being made safer.

The dean of American columnists is Jack Raper, of the Cleveland Press. He is about the only one, too, whose entire career is coupled with his first columnar job. His "Most Anything" was launched 36 years ago and thus Raper has the oldest column running in one paper under one name, done by the same person, in America. Raper's daily contribution is mostly humorous fluff, eminently tolerant and flecked with sound philosophy. Its endurance proves its worth.

The wing collar for full evening dress has become almost a burlesque of the collar worn by the minstrel end man. For several seasons it has been growing in height and size of tabs. And now it comes almost to the ear lobes with an especial upward swoop in the back. Until people become a little more used to it, the only description is: outlandish. Even Beaunash, the fashion falcon of theater programs, admits it is now a fixture and nothing can be done about it. Prince Obelinsky is reputed to have achieved the most gargantuan effect to date with Harry Silvey a runner-up. As usual, the new English King launched the new collar, proving his kingship has not shorn him as style's arbiter mundi, whatever that is. It was in a book.

The actor Louis Mann was first to make the huge gates ajar collar a trade-mark. His conception was enormous, as was a later version by Tony Biddle. But both were pigmies compared to this newest monstrosity. Al Bedell, the gown merchant, is another of the high collarist, clinging to the choker so dominating the handsome dogs pen-and-inked in Charles Dana Gibson drawings. Bedell's were said to be the highest collars ever made. Nat Dorfman once tried to buy advertising space on them.

Churchill's old stand "For Rent" on a Broadway corner is symbolical of the vast changes in the neighborhood. When Captain Jim Churchill retired from the police force to buy the site and open his restaurant it was believed choicest in the Lobster Belt. When Churchill quit, the various rentals promised an income of $50,000 a year. No one knows what happened. The corner simply went dead leaving the gap of a lost tooth.

There was a Cartoonists Table at Churchill's, where such limmers as Tad, Macauley, Kettlen, Corey and other big shots used to loaf. Now and then Homer Davenport joined them. And Bud Fisher, who had just come into important money with "Mutt and Jeff." I went in one day and sat at a nearby empty table to cop a few sly peeks at the notables. A waiter handed me a wine card and poised expectantly. I ordered a whisky sour, downed it and on the way, feeling quite sporty, paid $5 down on a light tan paddock coat, you know, sloping in just so at the waist and flaring, hot diggedy, at the hips.

Jerome Kern and Irving Berlin are richest of the living popular tune makers. Each in the millionaire division. Kern's fortune was augmented by royalties but it was chiefly from his marvelous collections of first editions, sold shortly before the crash. He could realize little on them today. Berlin's fortune is almost solely from his songs. He is said to have loaned his father-in-law, Clarence Mackay, a million when the vast Mackay estate was in jeopardy.

I've known the city many more years than the small town and it's possible my occasional nostalgia is specious sentimentality. It is always at sundown and seems incurable. I think I want to go back but shrink from going—fearful I shall miss the roars and excitements that make a city detestable yet hypnotic.

HEALTH

Diabetes Treatment

"Diabetes is a good disease, because one who has it takes proper care of himself and is likely to live longer than if he did not have diabetes." This statement was made by Dr. Joslin, an authority on diabetes.

Of course, everyone is aware of the advantages of good health. But too few guard health and too often impose upon the efficiency of the human machine.

Many obese persons are warned of the danger of overweight. They are aware of the potential danger of acquiring diabetes yet regardless of this knowledge, fail to take the necessary precautions against it. Though the actual cause of diabetes is unknown, it is numbered among the nutritional disturbances. In these the body is unable to utilize certain necessary foods. In this disease the symptoms are probably due to a deficiency of the natural insulin because diabetics have a lack of this substance.

Great Discovery

The discovery of a way to prepare and utilize an artificial insulin has been one of the greatest of science's contributions to man. Unfortunately, there is a great deal of misunderstanding about what may be expected of this substance. Too many persons believe that the administration of insulin means a cure for diabetes. This is not so.

No permanent cure for diabetes is known. The disease can be controlled by the use of insulin and following a proper diet, but once the treatment is discontinued the diabetic condition returns. In certain cases insulin is not needed and the disease can be controlled by regulation of the diet alone. Often diabetes is a temporary condition. It may be due to excessive quantities of carbohydrates in the diet. It may be the result of the sudden taking on of fat. When these factors are controlled the sugar in the blood and urine disappears.

Bear in mind that diabetes is a common disease, yet it is often overlooked. It is more prevalent among females and is especially likely to occur after the change of life. The disease is believed by some to be hereditary because it seems to attack several members of certain families.

As a rule there is excessive thirst and an excellent appetite. Despite the amount of food taken there is a loss of weight and increasing disability. The victim may have no pain, but does not feel well. At times it may be accompanied by smarting and burning. In all cases of suspected diabetes it is necessary to examine the urine and blood for their sugar content. If the urine does not contain sugar it is wise to check on the amount in the blood. It may be abnormally high in the blood with only a small trace in the former.

Your doctor will advise you as to treatment. All cases differ in their requirements. As I have suggested, diet alone may be sufficient to control the disease. Your doctor will decide whether you need insulin.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send addressed, stamped envelopes with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland in care of this newspaper at its main office in this city.

The Financial Statement

Among the assets shown in the financial statement of this Company, the largest single item is its loans on mortgage of real estate. On December 31, 1935, this Company held 7,656 such loans, amounting in all to practically eighteen million, six hundred thousand dollars. This makes an average of less than twenty-five hundred dollars for each loan.

The kind of real estate mortgaged to secure these loans consists principally of homes. The single family home including a reasonable plot of ground has always been the security most favored by this institution; it continues to be the most favored security today.

"HIGH SCHOOL TRAGEDY"

could not have been ten minutes from the time I first saw Mrs. Sardoni on the deck until the ferry whistle blew to indicate that we were approaching the dock. It was a million hours to me, yet I had no plan to waylay her.

She rose, wrapped her fur more closely about her throat and face, and moved toward the stairs. I rose, not knowing what I was to do, knowing I must not let her get away. I almost screamed for joy when the Inspector's white head appeared at the top of those stairs. Sardoni stopped with a suddenness that jolted her whole body, and backed into her corner.

At the same moment the Inspector saw her, advanced toward her, and stood face to face with her. A look of sheer faintness onto the deck between them and the stairs. "Well, Mrs. Sardoni, we meet again," he said.

"Why, yes, Inspector. Are you your little stenographer on a business jaunt to the city?"

Her self-possession was marvelous.

have witnessed a hundred times. As she neared my bench, I raised both legs straight in front of me, and she sprawled on the deck.

In two seconds, she was on her feet, but her hands were safely confined in the Inspector's handcuffs, and her arm held in his hard grip.

"Miss Julie," he said, "I give you my badge. You not only had to discover the murderer for me, but you had to capture her as well!"

It is a year since that hectic day. People still talk about the high school murder, and often someone asks me to tell them what I know, having been on the inside as it were. For my picture was in all the papers and my name in all the headlines, much to Mother's professed disgust, but inward pride. I was quite the heroine for a while.

Things have changed, however. Everyone has settled down to the usual routine again. Connie Sinclair is buried somewhere up in Washington. Mrs. Sardoni-Perkins is serving a life term in San Quentin, after pleading guilty to a murder charge; she couldn't do much else as information gleaned from her terrorized husband finally forced a confession from her late on the night of her arrest. It developed that she had threatened to kill both Connie and Perkins.

After a long and severe grilling, Mrs. Sardoni admitted that in a jealous rage over catching her husband again visiting the pretty teacher, she decided to exterminate her supposed rival. So the irate woman got her revolver, went up the stairs to Connie's apartment, opened the door, and fired the fatal shot without any warning. The weapon was never found, for Mrs. Sardoni had tossed it into the bay before she was arrested on the ferry.

Mr. Perkins left California and no one knows where he went. Bruce Lloyd and his wife still live in San Francisco. Beautiful pictures of her often appear in the society columns.

Melvin Wright is in jail for stealing automobiles. Allen is in college, stronger and saner than ever before. I shall enter college next fall myself, as will Dicky and Helen and Patsy. Mrs. Carrington got her divorce, but we never heard any more about them.

Yet for me the mystery is still unsolved. What is there about one human being that can have such effects on so many lives? Why was Connie Sinclair any different from Miss Sass or Miss Whelton? Why do human passions react so violently to certain personalities that they can send one woman to death, another to prison, a man to disgrace, and another to frustration? Will I know these answers as I grow older?

I often think of Connie, of the influence she exerted on all these people, and I wonder what she thought and felt herself. She seemed like hundreds of other young women, a little gayer, a little less restrained than most teachers, a little prettier, a little more alive. Her affairs with men were not so different from those of other girls either, a former sweetheart married to someone else, with a sentimental belief he was still in love with her; a handsome fiance who was desperately anxious to marry a new girl; another who was secretly married, but who found her too desirable to give up.

Many girls have had similar episodes in their lives and they simply live through them. Yet Connie was caught in a whirl of passions. Why did she allow herself to be? Or couldn't she help it? She was not weak. Even though she did not know he was married, why did she condone the semi-clandestine calls of Mr. Perkins? Was she really in love with him? Or was she so preoccupied with others that she did not realize the situation?

Was she heart-broken over Bruce Lloyd's change of emotion, and forgetting the ache in George Carrington's renewed attentions? Did she hold on to Bruce, on the other hand, as a sort of anchor to save her from that temptation? Was she really in love with George? Was she just making a gallant gesture in her letter on that last fateful night?

It seems to me that Mrs. Sardoni's terrible anger and jealousy and revenge would never have burst into gunfire if Connie had not been so involved in the lives of all these men. Would she not have massed her love for one of the men had not blurred everything else to her?

I know I'm just a kid, barely eighteen, but being so close to that murder has made me think a lot. I wonder if she were really a "tool of fate," the innocent victim of another woman's jealousy, or was she at bottom really to blame? Did she simply reach the end of an episodic, undirected life?

That to me is the real mystery, a mystery which the answer to this question alone would solve: Whom did Connie Sinclair really love?

Did she know the answer herself? (THE END.)

ROBINSON HITS RELIEF CRITICS

Senator Says Political Football Being Made Of Unemployed

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 10.—Declaring the Republican high command and the American Liberty league are attempting to "make a political football out of the unfortunate unemployed," Sen. Robinson (D-Ark) today launched a New Deal offensive against critics of its relief program.

Robinson, in a speech from the senate floor, entered the relief controversy at a time when Republicans were demanding a nation-wide investigation of the WPA. The Democratic leader asserted the Republican national committee and "its corporate affiliate, the Dupont Liberty league" were engaged in a "desperate effort to throw mud on the relief program by holding up certain projects to ridicule."

Defending white collar projects, Robinson said the league and the G. O. P. leadership were "suppressing, distorting and misrepresenting the facts."

"They aim at President Roosevelt," he declared in a 7,000-word address, "but in reality they hope to ridicule and drive back in the soup lines the great number of unemployed men and women who are simply asking an opportunity to earn a living for themselves and their families in the old fashioned and respectable American way."

He cited criticism that local responsibility was breaking down and said that "in virtually every case" local officials themselves sponsored the projects on the ground that they would be "of lasting benefit to their communities."

Each Puff Less Acid
A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobacco for Lucky Strike Cigarettes. They include preliminary analyses of the tobacco selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("Toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product. All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

BLACK INQUIRY IN NEW FIELDS

Investigate Law Firms to Determine Legislative Influence

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, March 10.—Assailing his critics as "those who want to work in darkness," Chairman Black (D-Ala.) of the senate lobby committee today carried his inquiry into new fields.

Committee members said a considerable number of law firms are being investigated in an effort to determine the nature and extent of influences directed at legislation.

Black made a radio speech last night, defending his committee's actions, a few hours after the senate had called for an explanation of one phase of the Black investigation.

Ask For Report
On motion of Senator Borah (R-Ida.), the chamber called on the Federal communications commission to tell what aid it has given the Black committee. There have been reports that the commission's employees replied thousands of telegrams and handed them over to the committee for scrutiny.

Black said last night that the legislative committee of the administration's Utility Holding Company Control bill and then tried to keep its activities secret. He denied that messengers of a private character had been examined.

"The real opposition to this committee's action," he said, "just as in other cases, comes from a desire of those who want to work in darkness, and who dread the condemnation of the honest patriotic people of this nation for their pernicious practices and their secret and concealing efforts to conceal their sinister activities behind lofty names and sonorous phrases."

mation may be obtained from Heston.

Theater Attractions

Paul Kelly and Arline Judge, stars of "Here Comes Trouble", to be shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow on a double bill.

Lionel Barrymore portrays a sportsman and country gentleman in "The Voice of Bugle Ann" on a double feature bill at the State tonight and tomorrow, the bill including Paul Kelly in "Here Comes Trouble", a comedy.

The Barrymore picture is the story of Missouri country men who love the sport of riding to the hounds. Barrymore is seen as Davis who breeds the best hounds in the country. Eric Linden plays the son and Maureen O'Sullivan the girl with whom he is in love.

"Bugle Ann" is Born
One night one of Davis' hounds dies in giving birth to a litter of pups. Among the litter is a female "runt". Davis grows very fond of this dog, raises it carefully and on the night of her first hunt he discovers that she has that rare gift, a bugle voice. She becomes the favorite and he names her Bugle Ann.
The love of this dog causes Davis to do many things, even commit murder, for which he is sent to prison to serve a 25-year sentence.
He is saved from this after serving four years by Maureen O'Sullivan, daughter of the man murdered by Davis.

A Comedy Romance

No Pay, So Trucker Hides $10,000 Cargo

CINCINNATI, March 10.—The mystery of the hidden truck was solved today.

Ray Ludwick, 38, a truck driver, agreed to return a truck loaded with $10,000 worth of merchandise when a Pittsburgh firm agreed to pay him a hauling bill.

Ludwick had concealed the truck because he failed to receive the hauling fee and Tony Infantino, head of a Pittsburgh transfer company, filed a charge of conversion against him. The charge was dismissed at Infantino's request after Ludwick returned the truck following payment of the fee.

WPA Funds Received By Three Divisions

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10 —More than 50 cents of every dollar spent by the works progress administration in Ohio, its directors said today, goes into streets, highways, and public buildings.

A listing of Ohio projects showed that 45.5 per cent of the $97,682,440 to be spent was allocated for highway, farm-to-market road, and streets projects. Public building projects accounted for 10.7 per cent, or $10,471,440 more. The remainder was divided between housing, parks and playgrounds, flood control and conservation, water supply and sewage systems, electric utilities, and transportation.
